Dear Friends and Fans,

Many of you who watched live the soccer match between Ghana and Guinea at the on-going African Nation Cup in Gabon yesterday know that the game was so tensed that many people nearly had heart attacks especially when the dreaded Guineans were in our central half area. The game is over, but the post match discussion will continue till Ghana encounters our next opponents at the quarter-finals stage. Congrats Ghana Black Stars. As the match was going on a lot of special updates were also being posted on Facebook and we want to share that experience with you.

Among them were friends posting prayers asking God to help our national teams and many hiplife and highlife musicians sharing their specialized track dedicated to the Black Stars. Notable were the work of good old burger highlife super Star, Sir Allan Cosmos hit song, Stars on the Dancing Ball, where he taunts the preceived opponents prayers total domination over all at the competition. The other noted music track, Ghana Black Stars was posted by a Hiplife artiste known as Mangoshi.

We are highlighting some of our own updates:

When the match started, we posted the following making fun of many Ghanaians who are so addicted to Facebook that they were facebooking as they were watching the game:

EI FACEBOOK ADDICTION .....PP ARE FACEBOOKING EVEN AS THEY WATCH THE MATCH.....AAAAAAHHHHHH AS FOR ME BY COURTESY OF MY FRIEND IN UK, I DEY WATCH IT FOR FREE.....ALL US FRIENDS.....HERE IS THE LINK

- <http://www.firstrow.tv/watch/105213/2/watch-ghana-vs-guinea.html>

We received many response including one that labelled us addicts too. Hahahahahaah so it was like the kettle calling the pot black. It was all fun galore.

Then at the time that Ghana was up by one goal and the going was becoming tough, we sarcastically posted the following:

- GHANA NYAME PLS DONT MIND THESE GUINEA PP.....WE SERVE U BETTER SO SHOW YA MERCY ON US.... WE LOVE U GOD

We received some interesting comments commending our creativity.

After the end of the game where every Ghanaian fan was jubilating we posted the following: We also had many responses :

- GHANA NYAME WOY3 BRUTAL.....WOY3 WILD PAAAA.....Y3DA WO ASE .....WOY3 NYAME AMPA

Then we posted our praises and appellations to God for seeing our great nation through to the quarter finals: We started with a question about who doubts the existence of the Almighty God. This appellations highlights the religious and belief system of the many Ghanaians like other nations do, that Soccer/Football is not just a game played on a field but there is the spiritual element where the support of a mighty power is solicited.

"WHO SEY GOD NO DEY.....?"

- ONYAME A WOFIRI GHANA WOY3 BUEI.....
WOY3 KATINKA,
WOY3 DOMFO WAWANI,
WOY3 KASAPREKO,
WOY3 NYANSABOAFO NYAME,
WOY3 PREK3S3 NYAME,
WOY3 BEDIAKO NKUNIMDEFO)
WOY3 OMINTSIMMIRIM,
WOY3 OBRUMANKOMA,
WOY3 KUKRUDU,
WOY3 AKATAMANSO,
WOY3 OTUMFOUR,
WOY3 OY3ADEAYIE,
WOY3 NKABOM BOAFO.....add to the list cos the TENSION was too much....."

It is very important for all Ghanaians to know that every nation that is playing at the Nation's Cup is trained and prepared to win; that we should exercise patience and not shout, curse, insult or blame some of our players when we concede a goal or two or make mistakes. Soccer or Football has now become scientific, this is why a lot of resources is put into preparing a team including the hiring of expatriate coaches. It takes a team to win and supporters role is also paramount towards winning. Suggestions are welcomed but it should not turn into politics or verbal assaults. We should take advantage of the unifying power of soccer and be tolerant of each other especially since 2012 is an election year for Ghana. We are all proud to be Ghanaians. Thanks to everyone for your support; please continue to support your nation, Ghana needs you.

Is today your birthday? Happy Birthday to you.
